FUNERAL JOURNEY OF PRESIDENT HARDING

The President's flag being carried before his coffin to San Francisco railway station by a member of the United States Marine Corps.

Troops placing the coffin on the hearse that carried it to San Francisco railway station.

The catafalque on which the late President Harding lay in state at Washington. This was used after the deaths of Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley.

The great crowd at Cheyenne, Wyoming, that came to salute the funeral train (on extreme left).

The first and exclusive pictures of the late President Harding's funeral journey from San Francisco to Washington appear on this page. At every station on the long route of 3,000 miles across the American Continent huge crowds assembled to pay their last token of respect to the dead chief of the United States. At many towns it was not possible for the train to halt, but by Mrs. Harding's wish it passed through them at a speed of only ten miles an hour.

STOP RECKLESS MOTOR-DRIVING.

Fatal Accidents 150 per Cent. Greater in Year.

ROAD HOGS OF 15.

Driving Permits Given to People Quite Irresponsible.

Universal approval has been accorded to The Daily Mirror campaign against the menace of the drunken and irresponsible motor-driver.

It is generally recognised that drastic steps must be taken to diminish the appalling number of accidents, many of them fatal, which occur daily, not only in the cities, but in the highways and byways. One of the most significant facts which has aroused public indignation is that the number of fatal accidents has increased by 150 per cent. during twelve months.

Boys over seventeen, even if they do not know the difference between an accelerator and a foot-brake, may secure a licence

BOYS WHO ARE A MENACE

Lives and Limbs Risked for Self-Glory of Motor-Cyclists.

The obvious remedy, in the opinion of thousands of experienced drivers, is the institution of driving tests before motor-car licences are issued, and raising the age limit for motor-cycle permits.

The Ministry of Transport apparently does not favour the driving test.

"The more drivers' licences the merrier, and the better for the Revenue" is their motto. — More stringent police regulations against reckless and dangerous driving is their remedy.

This was the studied opinion of a well-known member of the R.A.C., given to The Daily Mirror yesterday:—

"Nothing will be done until the licensing rules are overhauled."

"A driving test must be the first essential. Thousands of car owners gaily sally forth on a long journey after about half an hour's 'tuition' from the assistants of the firms from which the cars were bought."

SENSATION "AMBITION."

"Then there is the menace of the youngest on a more or less high-powered motor-cycle—the hatless youths who are to be found on every road and on every sea front.

Their sole object in life is to create a sensation. They succeed in this in the eyes of old people and children. The pity of it is that they sacrifice so many lives and limbs to their own self-glory.

It stands to reason that boys of fifteen to eighteen have no sense of responsibility, either to themselves or other people.

"So far as the drunken driver is concerned, I agree with The Daily Mirror. He should be imprisoned for the maximum term, and prevented from ever driving again."

GLASS EYE COMEDY.

Doctor Fails to See It When Testing Motorist for Drunkenness.

A peculiar case in which an acting divisional police surgeon said a motorist was drunk, though he did not discover that the man had a glass eye, was heard at West London Police Court yesterday, when Stanley James Watson, of Queen's-road, Richmond, was remanded on a charge of driving to the danger of the public while intoxicated.

Dr. McKee, acting divisional police surgeon, stated that he concluded the defendant was drunk on the following grounds: He smelled of alcohol, he was very unsteady when walking a floor-board at the police station, he swayed when standing with his feet together and his eyes closed, and the pupils of both eyes failed to react to light and were dilated.

Mr. Morley (cross-examining): You did not discover that one of his eyes is a glass eye?—No. The Magistrate. Well, you would not expect a glass eye to be dilated?

Mr. Lancaster (to Mr. Morley): You need not cross-examine the doctor further. I really cannot rely on such evidence.

BANANAS BAN.

"If You Have Them Don't Sell Them on Beach"—Cleethorpes Bench.

Yes, they have bananas at Cleethorpes! But you must not hawk them on the sands. This was revealed yesterday, when Benjamin Mackrill, summoned for defying the bench regulations by hawking bananas on the sands, said he was only delivering two bananas to a woman who had ordered them. The Bench found he was hawking, and fined him 5s.

THE KING ON WAY TO BALMORAL.

The King left Euston last night for Balmoral. The Queen, arriving at Harrgate, was met by Lord Lascelles and motored to Goldsborough Hall.

CARRIAGE "REFUGE."

Widow Tells Court Why She Travelled First Class.

"NOTORIOUS WOMAN."

That she wished to avoid a "certain notorious woman" was the excuse made at Magistrates' Police Court yesterday by Mrs. Lillian Whittaker, a young widow, when she was fined £26, with one guinea costs, for travelling in a first-class carriage on the Great Western Railway with a third-class season ticket.

Mr. E. Freke Palmer, defending, said Mrs. Whittaker (travelled from Langley (Bucks) on each occasion with Mr. Herbert Ciescinsky, the well-known architect and art expert, a first-class season ticketholder. She did not offer to pay any excess fares, however, and when she was stopped exclaimed: "Oh! how silly. I did it to avoid a woman who was travelling up by the same train."

She also admitted having travelled in the same way on one previous occasion, and remarked that the gentleman she was with should have paid the difference in the fares as he invited her into the carriage. As Mr. Ciescinsky left by a different exit she did not know whether he did or not.

Mrs. Whittaker, who described herself as an instructress at a health institute, said she travelled first at the invitation of Mr. Ciescinsky because she, in common with others, wished to avoid a certain notorious woman.

Mr. Ciescinsky agreed that he invited her into his carriage to avoid the woman referred to. He paid the fines.

BUSY WOMEN INVENTORS

Hot Dish Server and Reversible Jumper Needle—Hairpins Comedy.

Women's inventions are prominent at the Inventors' Exhibition opened yesterday at the Institute of Patentees, Great Russell-street.

Others include a server for hot dishes, reversible jumper needles, pinless pudding cloth, self-soaping scrubbing brushes, rat and insect traps and hairpins with teeth that lodged themselves so securely in the tresses of the girl assistant that she had difficulty in removing them.

The most complicated exhibit was a coding and decoding machine produced by Mr. Sydney Hyle after twenty years' effort. Two typewriters loomed out of a mass of rubber tubing and brass fittings, and while an operator types out a message on one machine it is simultaneously typed in code on the other.

Low exhibited his model of the original apparatus for controlling aeroplanes and torpedoes by wireless, and mere man had at least one article designed exclusively for his convenience—an electric trouser-press.

M.P.'S WIFE TO RESCUE.

Crowd Dash Into Sea to Help Three Women Bathers.

The wife of Lieutenant-Commander Cooper Rawson, M.P. for Brighton, was one of several people who dashed into the sea at Hove yesterday to rescue three women bathers.

The three bathers were Miss Kate Farrell, matron of a nursing home at St. Aubyn's-gardens, Hove, and two nurses from the same home, Miss Robert Browne and Miss Minnie McGowan.

First aid was administered when they were brought to the beach. Miss Farrell and Miss McGowan quickly recovered, but Miss Browne was in a serious condition.

POST OFFICE DRAMA.

Man Points Weapon, Cries "Hands Up!" and Flees, Hearing Screams.

A well-dressed man walked into Cranbrook-road Sub-Post Office, Deptford, yesterday, and, pointing either a real or a toy revolver through the grille at Miss Stone, the postmistress, who was alone, cried, "Hands up!"

She screamed for her lodger, Miss Simmonds, and seizing the telephone called "Police!" Her cries so alarmed the man that he fled precipitately, taking nothing, and was pursued by Miss Stone and some passers-by.

After running some distance he disappeared down Strickland-road and was lost.

I was stupefied at first," Miss Stone told The Daily Mirror last night, "but when I recovered my wits and screamed he seemed to hesitate and bolted through the door.

Scotland Yard, in an official statement, described the man as of thirty years of age, dark complexion, clean-shaven, wearing a blue suit and of very respectable appearance.

A WARNING.

The Daily Mirror desires to warn its readers that a man selling rings in Highbury, N., and other places, has no connection with this paper, nor is he selling these rings on behalf of or with the authority of The Daily Mirror.

DOCTOR'S FATAL OVERDOSE.

Death from misadventure was the Bridgewater inquest verdict yesterday on Dr. H. S. Pope, for many years borough medical officer of health, who died from an overdose of morphine.

CREVICE BRAVERY.

Youth Rescues Dog After Attempts on Three Days.

HOLE ONLY 1ft. WIDE.

Bravery in descending a mountain crevice 48ft. deep and only 1ft. wide three days in succession in order to rescue a dog has resulted in Willie Thomas, seven-en, of Mardy, South Wales, being awarded the silver medal of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

It was impossible for a man to descend the crevice, but Thomas was slim, and, with a rope tied round his waist, he was with difficulty lowered to the bottom of the crevice.

He remained there for half an hour on the first day, but failed to reach the dog, and was brought up exhausted. On the second day he was at the bottom of the crevice for an hour, but only succeeded in getting near the dog.

The following day Thomas descended again, and after three-quarters of an hour he succeeded in gripping the dog's hind legs with a pair of pincers and brought it alive to the surface. He was badly bruised in doing so.

ELLIS ISLE INQUIRY?

U.S. Agrees With Sir A. Geddes and Demands Congress Action.

Most of the American newspapers, cables Reuters approve the report of Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador at Washington, on conditions at Ellis Island.

"It is described by the New York Tribune as 'fair and helpful,' and prompt action by Congress is called for."

The World declares that the report is "a model," and adds: "It is impossible to read it without feeling that he has just cause for the charges made for."

Mr. Robert Todd, ex-Commissioner of Immigration, declined, says the Exchange, to join issue with Sir Auckland Geddes, and agreed entirely with his statement that the buildings were overcrowded and that the immigrants are accommodated near improvement.

General Rejected.—General A. Loukowsky, ex-Chief of Staff of the Russian Army under the Tsar, has, with his family, not been allowed to leave New York, the Russian quota being exhausted.—Reuter.

'FAIRY TALES' FROM U.S.

Trade Speaker Attacks Temperance Advocates and Lady Astor's Bill.

"Lord Astor states that the brewers of this country find it more difficult to fight openly under their trade banner, and are organising themselves to catch the unwary. I only wish the enemies of the trade would come out into the open," declared Mr. Walters Butler, a member of the Liquor Control Board, at Birmingham yesterday.

"Lady Astor's Bill for prohibiting the sale of beer and spirits to persons under eighteen was not introduced for a number of years from a mixture of an honest evil," he added.

"The main object was to blacken licensed houses. Lord Astor has changed the licensed trade with carrying on anti-American propaganda. When Americans preach fairy tales about the success of their great experiment they must not get peevish if the licensed trade here spreads the truth."

Viscount Astor.

PRESENT ARMS TO PETS!

Triumphal March of Pip, Squeak and Wilfred at Hythe.

As the pets' tour progresses the enthusiasm with which they are greeted increases.

At Folkestone yesterday, when the trio made their bow from the platform of Cardow's Cadets, the cheeriest and the loudest of a great distance off. Squeak seemed particularly delighted, and strutted up and down in front of her house.

During the pets' performance Mr. Cardow handed Pip a cheque for three guineas to give to St. Andrew's Convalescent Home on behalf of Pip, Squeak and Wilfred.

At Hythe, where the pets arrived at 2.30 p.m., their progress was one triumphal procession, the Boy Scouts and Boys' Brigade turning out to present arms as the pets passed. A number of people in the crowd had been waiting from 10.30 in the morning.

The pets posed for over an hour while photographs were taken of them.

Concerning the pets will appear at the White Rock pleasure gardens, Hastings, at 11.30, and at Bexhill on the front at 2.30 p.m.

DUCKING STOOL CURE.

Some of the obsolete modes of punishment, such as the ducking stool, might well be revived as part punishment in such cases, said Mr. J. R. Roberts, magistrate's clerk, during a woman's assault case yesterday at Newcastle.

YOUR CHILD ITS OWN BANKER.

Simple Way of Sharing "Daily Mirror" £25,000.

GOLDEN COUPONS.

Slips of Paper That Mean Money to the Young.

"A penny saved is a penny earned." How often do we remember this? Not so frequently, perhaps, as we might, for if everybody kept it in mind what a busy time the banks would have!

The great Daily Mirror £25,000 thrift scheme for children is a timely reminder, however, of the truth and wisdom of this.

Thrift as an object lesson to the young is the keynote. In this most interesting scheme, and under it it is possible for every boy and girl under fifteen years of age to secure gifts of money which can be made the nucleus for a banking account.

All that has to be done is to start collecting Daily Mirror Certificates—one of which appears each day in the top right-hand corner of the last page—and then exchange them for either cash or money-earning National Savings Certificates.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOUR.

How to Add to Those Packets of Gold—Points to Remember.

The conditions of The Daily Mirror's £25,000 thrift scheme are so delightfully simple that any child who can read and write can understand them.

First of all, a boy or girl, as the case may be, must start collecting Certificates. Eight Certificates are worth one penny. Remember that. Also remember that something like one million Daily Mirror's are sold each day. That means, of course, that there are one million Certificates waiting to be collected. See how many of this vast number you can collect. Watch the pennies grow.

HOW GROWN-UPS CAN HELP.

Only children are eligible for benefits under The Daily Mirror scheme, but the grown-ups can help the young collectors in a hundred and one ways. Your friend or neighbour is probably a regular reader of The Daily Mirror, but has no family. There is a Certificate there for the asking, and right, Central, send, remember once more, represent one penny.

For ninety-six Certificates (the smallest number that can be sent in) one shilling will be paid, two shillings for 192, and so on, while for 1,456 a National Savings Certificate worth 16s. will be given.

Every boy and girl should aim at becoming the owner of one or more of these National Savings Certificates. This is what is needed:—

For 2,950 Children's Savings Certificates the sender will receive	2 National Savings Certificates	£1: 12
For 4,400 Children's Savings Certificates the sender will receive	3 National Savings Certificates	£2: 8
For 5,850 Children's Savings Certificates the sender will receive	4 National Savings Certificates	£3: 4

Collectors of Certificates should fasten them together in a package at the top of which there must be attached a slip of paper giving the name, address and age of the sender, and the number of Certificates sent in.

FORECAST OF 'VERY FIRM' FRENCH REPLY TO BRITAIN

Belief That M. Poincare Will Suggest a Further Plan for Reparations.

PARIS HOPEFUL OF SAVING THE ENTENTE

Agreement Possible If British Government Abandons Inquiry Into Germany's Capacity to Pay.

"Very firm in tone" is the description of the French reply to Britain, a forecast of which is given in Paris telegrams.

The reply, which may be ready by the end of this week, will refute British criticisms and demonstrate France's need for reparations and security. It is understood that M. Poincare will suggest a reparations plan which he thinks will meet with Allied acceptance.

Opinion in Paris is hopeful that a rupture may yet be avoided. France, however, will not agree to the British Government's proposal for an inquiry into Germany's capacity to pay.

The French reply is to be communicated first to the Belgian Government, which is replying to Britain separately.

FRANCE TO INSIST THAT GERMANY MUST PAY.

Note May Be Ready by End of This Week.

NO USELESS INQUIRY.

PARIS, Thursday.

It is expected that M. Poincare's reply to the British Note will be ready before the end of the week.

It will contain not only a detailed reply to the points raised by Lord Curzon, but a lengthy exposition of the French attitude on reparations.

It is understood that M. Poincare will suggest a plan of reparations to which, he believes, the Allies might agree.

This will consist of fixing what he considers to be a reasonable time limit in which Germany should contribute payments towards the reconstruction of the devastated regions and postponing for further consideration the examination of the payment of other war debts.

GERMANY MUST PAY.

M. Poincare will agree that a moratorium must be granted to Germany, but he will still adhere to the demand that Germany must pay the amounts fixed.

If Britain and America agree to reduce the war debts due to them, France will immediately give Germany the benefit.

Confidence is still expressed in authoritative quarters in Paris that a rupture will be avoided and that it will be possible for the Allies to continue to act together.

L'Œuvre asserts that the French Government would agree to evacuate the Ruhr immediately if, in the event of a general agreement being in sight, any of the Allies would be prepared to guarantee Germany's payments to France.

The Debat hopes that England will not insist on the deplorable idea of an international Commission of Experts, as that is a suggestion to which France would never agree.

So long as London insists on setting up such a Commission to estimate Germany's capacity to pay, it is useless, says the Gaulois, to talk of an agreement.—Central News.

"VERY FIRM TONE"

According to Reuter, the Note will be very firm in tone, and will not deviate from French policy as already laid down.

An Exchange message says the reply will be sent either at the week-end or the beginning of next week. Belgium will reply separately.

The Comte de St. Aulaire, the French Ambassador in London, arrived in Paris yesterday.

STIFF RUHR FIGHTING.

Reds Seize Town, Disarming Both Police and the Militia.

BERLIN, Thursday.

The Ruhr has flared up again, and heavy fighting is reported from many places.

The most serious news comes from Datteln, north-east of Essen. Communists stormed the City Hall, disarmed the police, and took possession of the town. Militia who were summoned from a neighbouring town were also disarmed. There were many casualties on both sides.

The German Government, in the hope of relieving the tension, is sending large quantities of food for distribution in towns where the shortage of food is the cause of unrest.—Central News.

An Aix-la-Chapelle telegram states that the Belgians yesterday arrested persons who are alleged to have committed acts of sabotage. Bombs, revolvers, daggers, heavy clubs and documents relating to the organisation of sabotage were found in their houses.

EUROPE'S GRAVE DANGER WITHOUT THE ENTENTE.

Lord Rothermere's Warning on Break with France.

ANOTHER WAR?

An article of extraordinary importance and of vital interest to every man and woman in this country, "Europe Without the Entente," by Lord Rothermere, is announced to appear in next Sunday's issue of the Sunday Pictorial.

Over 2,250,000 copies will be printed containing this remarkable exposition of the inevitable consequences of the British Government's attitude towards France.

Lord Rothermere traces the historical basis of the Entente with France, and contends that one of the chief principles of our national defence is to maintain alliances with those of our Continental neighbours who are opposed to our enemies.

LONDON MENACED

Our Government are not in a position to undertake any sort of effective "separate action." Europe without the Entente is bound to mean an immense growth of armaments, and the certain approach of another Great War.

In this country we shall have to raise a big air force at immense cost, greatly increase the small craft of the Navy and reintroduce conscription within two years.

Britain is no longer an island, and London presents the greatest and most vulnerable target in the world.

London cannot be directly defended against air attack on a large scale, and can be easily bombarded by gunfire from the Continent.

FOLLY OF A BREAK.

Our Government have done nothing to protect us from these possibilities, and yet they address provocative words to France and encourage the Germans to resist.

The Government are not in the least able to enforce their admonitions. It is folly and worse to break the Entente in the interests of Germany upon a matter in which most Britons believe the French to be right.

Intending readers of this important pronouncement are strongly advised to place their orders for next Sunday's issue of the Sunday Pictorial at once, as the demand is certain to be enormous.

GOLD LOAN CLAIM.

Note Sent to Germany by the Reparation Commission.

PARIS, Thursday.

The Reparation Commission, at its meeting on Tuesday, decided by a majority vote—the British assistant delegate abstaining—to address to the German Government a letter dealing with the issue of a new gold loan by the German Government.

This letter calls attention to the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles, and reserves the Commission's right of priority against any funds which may be assigned by the German Government to the payment of interests or the repayment of the capital of the loan in question.—Reuter.

TOYS COST TWO LIVES.

Wilfred Cyril Lipscombe, aged five, strayed from a Bible class party at Lee-on-Solent and, reaching from the pier steps for a balloon, was drowned.

Reginald Bradley, aged twenty-one, met with a similar fate whilst swimming to recover a toy boat which had been lost by a child at Hayling Island.

Lady Bertha Dawkins, Lady-in-Waiting to the Queen, who accompanied her Majesty yesterday to Goldborough Hall, Yorks., Princess Mary's home.

Dr. George Living, aged ninety-five, and the oldest University don, welcomed the National Federation of General Workers to Cambridge yesterday.

THREE INJURED IN LONDON BUS-TRAM SMASH.

Collision When Driver Tried to Avoid Cyclist.

MOTHER AND SON HURT.

Passengers on the upper deck of an omnibus passing Gunnersbury Station, Chiswick, yesterday, received a shock when the vehicle was in collision with a tram, and three of them were injured—two seriously.

The driver of the omnibus was endeavouring to avoid a cyclist when the collision occurred.

Part of the top of the bus staircase was knocked away and glass in the tram was broken. The injured are:

Mr. R. A. Parsons, forty, of St. Stephens-road, Hounslow, who was taken to Chiswick Hospital unconscious from head injuries.

Alfred J. Crosby, nine, of Peardon-road, Hammersmith (head injuries).

Mrs. E. Crosby, thirty-one, his mother (head injuries and shock).

Later last night the boy Crosby was stated to be "pretty bad," and Mr. Parsons' condition was stated to be serious.

POKER EMBEDDED IN BACK.

Victim and Another Unable to Pull It Out—Brother Charged.

An extraordinary story of an assault with a poker was told at St. Austell yesterday, when Arthur Ernest Roberts was sent for trial charged with wounding his brother Albert at Pentewan.

Albert Roberts said he put up his hand after feeling a blow during a quarrel, and found a poker sticking out of his back. He and his brother's stepson could not pull it out. A doctor had to cut it out.

Dr. Marshall said the poker was firmly embedded in Albert's side from below the shoulder-blade to the armpit. He made an incision of 3in. through the skin and muscle to get at the poker, the course of which had been deflected from the heart and lungs by the intervening rib.

Police evidence was that Arthur Roberts said: "I threw the poker at my brother. I was very sorry afterwards and shook hands with him."

STRIKE LEADERS' VANITY.

Dockers Advised Not to Follow the Men Who Shout the Loudest.

Common-sense advice was given to dockers by Mr. J. R. Clynes, M.P., in his presidential address at the conference of the National Federation of General Workers, which opened at Cambridge yesterday.

"An agreement is usually a thing to be respected, and its terms are commonly observed even when they do not express a good bargain," he said.

"The rank and file cannot be led to victory unless they can resist the temptation to follow men who shout loudest and whose vanity is so costly to their followers."

SAIL OH! AND S.O.S.

Five Young Adventurers Mid Rigging, a Mast, and Rather Rough Sea.

Frantic signals from a sailing boat two miles off Broadstairs resulted in a motor-boat going to the rescue.

Three young women and two young men, all under twenty, and unused to sailing, were found aboard. They had all the rigging in disorder, the sail on the wrong side of the mast and they were drifting in a rather rough sea. They were brought safely to shore.

TWO MISSIN' ON MOUNTAIN.

Two Englishmen who left Orisete to climb Sassolungo mountain have been missing for ten days, says an Exchange wire from Bolzano via Rome. The district was unfamiliar to them and they took food for only a few days.

RESCUE THRILLS ON SINKING STEAMER.

People Roused from Sleep to Climb Rope Ladders.

2 A.M. COLLISION.

20 Minutes' Hustle Before I. of M. Boat Went Under.

Just after leaving Liverpool early yesterday morning for the Isle of Man the steamer Douglas came into collision in the Mersey with another steamer, the Artemisia, a London cargo boat, inward bound.

The Douglas was almost cut in half, but all the passengers and crew—numbering forty-five—were rescued before she sank within twenty minutes. Only one man was injured.

The Douglas left Coburg Dock about 2 a.m. with a general cargo, fifteen passengers—of whom the only woman was a doctor's wife, who had her two children with her—and a crew of thirty.

When the Douglas cleared the last dock gate a strong tide was running.

At that moment the Artemisia, which was approaching Brunswick Dock in tow of a tugboat, suddenly loomed up in the darkness.

The force of the tide was too strong, and the Maux vessel, after grazing the side of the tugboat, was carried on to the Artemisia, whose bow crashed into the Douglas.

BARFOOTED DASH FROM CABINS.

The passengers in the Douglas, who had retired to their cabins for the night, rushed up on deck—most of them barefooted and only half-dressed—and found the crew already assembled. Rope ladders were lowered by the men aboard the Artemisia and the passengers and crew of the Douglas were soon safe, those not taken aboard the other steamer being rescued by the tugboat Lightning Cock.

One stewardess, it was learned afterwards, had a very narrow escape, while asleep, the bow of the Artemisia having pierced her cabin.

It was the bow of the other ship which, acting as a plug in the hole torn in the side of the Douglas, kept her afloat long.

Only one man was injured. This was a seaman named Edge, whose hip and left arm were hurt. He had to be treated in hospital.

One of the most exciting experiences was that of the Marconi operator, who had locked his cabin door. When he rushed to unlock it the key had fallen out, and for some time he had to grope about in total darkness, not knowing how long the steamer would keep afloat.

CLAD ONLY IN OVERCOAT.

Another man was imprisoned in his cabin through the smashing of the woodwork, and he had to be pulled through a small window.

A third man was got off, wearing nothing but his overcoat, which he donned hastily when summoned on deck after he had discarded his pyjamas, and was about to try to dress.

A Liverpool insurance agent had stopped to put his boots on when his cabin was flooded and he made a dash upstairs.

Just before the Douglas went under a member of the crew who worked long hours, the passengers praised—made a final tour to see that nobody was left aboard.

The passengers lost everything but the scanty attire in which they escaped, two bookmakers—on their way to the Maux races—having to leave behind their satchels and "paying out" money in the pockets of their clothes.

The Artemisia was docked with her bows badly damaged and making-water.

NON-STOP CARETAKER.

To Be Telephone Operator As Well for 7s. 2d. a Week—Post Office Offer.

The man will be required according to the advertisement, to be responsible for the whole of the operating at the telephone exchange during the following hours:—

Saturday, 1 p.m. till 3 p.m.

The union states: "We hope that public opinion will agree that the remuneration offered is wholly inadequate for the services expected."

WILL DE VALERA BE TRIED?

Free State Alternative of Keeping Him Under Detention.

As the result of the arrest of De Valera two more Republican candidates will be put forward in Clare.

It is open to the Government either to detain De Valera, under the Public Safety Act, or to submit his record and his assertion of his dictatorial authority to a judicial tribunal.

For all Diseased Skin Surfaces

Germolene has brought comfort, solace and healing to hundreds of sufferers who had not known rest from skin torture for months and years. Read the following remarkable statement of Mrs. V. Leslie.

Mrs. Leslie, of 12 High Street, Cheadle, writes to the manufacturers of Germolene as follows:—"I feel I must write to tell you of the wonderful cure Germolene has effected in the case of my daughter, aged 13 years. Late last August her ankle and foot became covered with a pimply rash which was very irritable, and she scratched the parts until they were a mass of inflamed sores. I tried every kind of treatment that was recommended to me, but nothing did any good. This state of affairs continued until the beginning of the following June when I decided to try Germolene as a last resource. After the first dressing the inflammation and irritation seemed less, and after three weeks' treatment only the scars remained. When I tell you that several of my friends thought the child would lose her foot, you will perhaps understand how thankful I am I gave Germolene a trial."

SOOTHES AT A TOUCH!

ELLIS ISLAND.

IT is the boast of Americans, when engaged in controversy, that "America can take a punch."

America has certainly received a punch in Sir Auckland Geddes' extremely outspoken report on the conditions which he found prevailing on Ellis Island; and it is to be hoped that his strong comments will be received in the friendly spirit in which they are made.

Technically, of course, the Americans are within their rights in making any arrangements which they like for the sifting of their immigrants; but they will probably feel, upon reflection, that they owe it to themselves, if not to the rest of the world, to see to it that those arrangements are decent and humane.

Theirs is not the only new country into which the old world is seeking to pour its superfluous citizens; but it is the only country in which the treatment of those superfluous citizens, on their arrival, arouses bitter complaints at frequent intervals.

More should certainly be done by the refusal of "visas" to prevent undesirables from starting for a country which does not want them; but a conclusive case has also been made out for a complete revision of the arrangements on the penitential island itself.

LONDON TEMPTATIONS.

WHEN the late Dean Farrar ended a fierce tirade against the iniquities of the age by asking the Master of Balliol what, in his opinion, was its most characteristic vice, that famous sage replied:

"I am inclined to think that our worst fault is our deplorable habit of exaggeration."

The anecdote is one of which many people are likely to be reminded when they read the declaration of Bishop James Cannon, of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States, that "there is more temptation for the average middle-class man in London than in any city of the world which I have visited with the exception of Paris."

Surely that statement is a gross calumny which Londoners (and Parisians, too) are entitled to resent.

Vice is no longer flaunted in the London streets as it used to be. Sobriety is the rule and intemperance the exception. Religious leaders are accorded a respectful hearing on all manner of subjects, and there is no "night life" in London comparable in coarse depravity with that, say, of Berlin.

Why cannot the Bishop hold up the ideals of virtue to admiration without unjustly denouncing Londoners as the chief of sinners?

WOMEN'S ORATORY.

MANY people will agree that a felt want is likely to be met by the classes which are to be held, at the London Polytechnic, for the purpose of teaching women to "speak efficiently in public."

Dr. Johnson, that violent anti-feminist, did women a grave injustice when he compared their oratory to the dancing of dogs, saying that the thing was not well done, but that the wonder was that it was done at all.

The best women speakers speak very well indeed. Neither Mrs. Besant nor Miss Royden—to name two only—has anything to learn in manner or delivery from any orator of the other sex.

Women, however, get less practice than men in school and college debating societies; and the consequence is that most of them have a difficulty, not only in making themselves heard in large halls, but also in arranging their ideas in orderly sequence.

THROUGH "THE MIRROR."

Noisy Day Trippers—Separating Husband and Wife—Children in the Streets.

DAY TRIPPERS.

I DO not know if it is the effect of a holiday acting upon a weak mentality, but day trippers have always been noted for rowdyism and noise.

I remember over thirty years ago a well-known seaside resort complaining of this quite bitterly, although the charabanc could not be blamed in those days.

So why cry out as if it were a new nuisance? BEHAVIOUR.

A PLEA FOR BATHING MACHINES.

THERE has been much discussion from time to time concerning the behaviour of bathers at our seaside holiday resorts.

May I put in a plea for the return of the old-time bathing machine, which took the bather down to the water and into it?

At present one has to undress almost on the promenade in stationary huts, and then take a

MOST POPULAR MAN IN AMERICA.

IN the August number of a favourite American magazine I noticed this significant paragraph:—

"The King of England is just about the most popular man of the day with the American public, particularly those who get their stuff from Canada. I haven't attended a single party recently at which a toast was not offered in his honour, after derogatory reference to our own Mr. Volstead."

H. W. B.

SHOULD THEY SEPARATE?

YOUR correspondent "F. L. W." suggests that husbands and wives should separate a good deal and see other people, adding that it is monotonous that kills affection.

To me it seems that if a man separates from his wife, or vice versa, all affection is likely to die away.

A man may become fond of somebody else, or tortuous walk over stones to the water in full view of the world and his wife. Surely there must be many who would welcome the return of the machine on wheels and the prospect of a "header" straight into the water. RESIDENT. Brighton.

LOOK BOTH WAYS.

I CANNOT understand why parents do not warn their children of the dangers of walking about and crossing the busy streets of London.

During the summer holidays one sees groups of them walking about London, some tramping all the way from the suburbs to Hyde Park and Regent's Park, either to catch "tiddlers" or to watch the antics of the squirrels.

Driving a friend's car through London the other day, I was terrified lest I should knock some child down. Every now and again a small mite would run from the pavement to meet an elder brother or sister on the other side of the road, not bothering to look to see what was coming.

Indeed, driving along Regent's Park was a most nerve-racking experience. I was continually sounding the hooter and pulling up suddenly to avoid running down some careless and thoughtless child.

If only children were warned to look both ways before crossing it would be so much better for them and much easier for motor-drivers. T. K. C.

his wife may fall in love with another man, thus causing many complications and quarrels. Husbands and wives should try to make their existence a happy one. Why do they marry at all if they think, or know, that they cannot get on with each other? M. E. D. Warwick-avenue, W.

A WORD TO THE HATLESS.

THE photograph, entitled "Sun Baths on Hospital Roof" in a recent issue of The Daily Mirror should give food for thought as to the advisability of letting small children go hatless during the heat wave.

The photographed children—under medical care—are all wearing shady hats, though very little other clothing.

I notice that little "mothers" of eight or nine years, who picnic in the parks at this time of year, although wonderfully capable little nurses in many ways, often put baby to sleep in the strong rays of the midday sun—a dangerous practice for hatless and sometimes hairless mites. LOVER OF CHILDREN.

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY.

People (in authority) are accustomed merely to look to hinder, to refuse, but rarely to bid, to further, and to reward. They let things go along till some mischief happens; then they fly into a rage, and lay about them.—Goethe.

HOW YOUTH CAME INTO ITS OWN.

THE PRECOCIOUS ENCOURAGED BY THE ELDERLY.

By A MIDDLE-AGED MAN.

THIS is the age of the young.

I think it began about the late 'nineties. At any rate it was well after my own youth had disappeared. That makes me, perhaps, regard the tendency of the time with rather a jaundiced eye.

When I was a boy it seems to me, in the retrospect, that repression was the order of the day.

The fact that we wanted to do something then was sufficient reason for its being forbidden. When I reflect upon the teaching we had some fifty years ago I marvel that we ever learned anything. The lack of method in our schools, private and public, was beyond belief.

It would have overwhelmed Mr. H. G. Wells. He could not have begun to deal with it.

Then, suddenly as it seemed, the nation grew alive to the supreme importance of the rising generation.

I take it that our little South African affair (known in those far-off days as the Great Boer War) may have had an awakening effect. It was then, or about then, that our teachers began to think young blood was better than grey experience.

Some enterprising journalist raised the cry "Too Old at Forty," and the slogan overran the country like a devouring flame. Educational theorists arose and flourished. The young people began to find themselves thrust forward into the limelight.

It has gone on, with increasing rapidity, ever since, as when you start a stone rolling on the mountain-side.

THE NEW IDEALS.

The flappers began to flap, the young men to dream dreams—and to write strange books about school life.

How they would have developed if the cataclysm of 1914 had not burst over their heads I cannot say. But they were certainly beginning to pull down the ancient images.

It was a crucial time. Some of them were even blaspheming the Sporting Spirit. Kipling and the Brushwood Boy were back numbers. New ideals had arisen. Or at all events the old ones had vanished.

Perhaps it was a good thing that the war turned their thoughts into other channels. Because during the last three years or so the rising generation has had it all their own way more than ever.

I suppose we lost so many of our young men that we decided our boys ought to be pushed on as fast as possible to fill up the gaps. The young people are to have their chance now, if never before.

The cry is for more youth in our cricket and football teams, and we organise golf and tennis tournaments for boys and girls from the age of five upwards.

Thus only, say our experts, can we hope to stem the tide of American and Colonial champions who come over annually and remove our challenge cups.

Yes! Parents and guardians are all for encouraging the young ideas to shoot.

What is the true reason of it all? Do the old really wish to encourage precocity on the part of the young? I have a friend (possibly something of a cynic) who asserts roundly that it is all due to laziness.

A MARVELLOUS PERFUMED VELVET CREAM REMOVES HAIR

VEET.

Razors and ordinary depilatories simply remove hair above the skin surface. Veet melts the hair away beneath it. Veet is a perfumed velvet cream that is as easy to use as a face cream. Just spread it on as it comes from the tube, wait a few minutes, rinse it off and the hair is gone as if by magic. Veet will not stimulate hair growth and has no disagreeable odour. More pleasant than burning depilatories, far better than scraping razors. Satisfactory results guaranteed! In every case or money refunded.

Change of Diet

The best change of diet, for grown-ups as for children, is a course of HOOKER'S—the most delicious form in which nourishment can be taken without digestive effort. HOOKER'S, remember, is the Malted Milk with the nicest flavour.

TO BALMORAL

Royalty's Refugee Guests—Success of Young Actress—London's One Fault.

THE KING LEFT LONDON yesterday for Scotland, and the Court will remain at Balmoral for some weeks. The Queen, on her way North, is staying a few days with Princess Mary in Yorkshire. The Balmoral visit is to be made a restful holiday, with a minimum of formality. A Cabinet Minister's constant attendance is no longer required, and only urgent State business, if any, will be attended to by his Majesty.

At Goldsborough.

Doubtless a great number of people will motor over to Goldsborough Church on Sunday, hoping to see the Queen there. Since it became known that Viscount Lascelles often reads the lessons at the morning service the church has been full of strangers. Princess Mary always joins in the hymns and psalms, she has a sweet voice and enunciates very clearly. Viscountess Boyne has been staying with her.

Earning Their Living.

Last week the King and Queen entertained Prince Paul Chavchavadze and his wife, Princess Nina, for the week-end on board the royal yacht. Prince Paul is employed by a firm of decorators as artist and designer, his brother, Prince George, is studying music with a view to earning a living by it, and his sister is working in a bank—they are, in fact, a typical example of the strange between-two-worlds existence of the Russian refugees.

The Prince.

It is still uncertain whether the Prince of Wales, when he visits Fort George and Nairn on the 22nd, will unveil the Seaforth Highlanders' war memorial, and to open their club bazaar, will be the guest of The Mackintosh of Mackintosh and Mrs. Mackintosh at Moy Hall, or of the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland at Dunrobin Castle. It is understood that in either case the Duke of Sutherland will be present with his Royal Highness at Fort George and Nairn. The Duchess of Sutherland will not; she is to open a bazaar on the 22nd at Lairg, in Central Sutherland.

Duke's Scottish Home.

Dunrobin Castle, which will be the scene of a great deal of entertaining when the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland arrive there in a day or two, is claimed to be the oldest inhabited residence in the British Isles. It is a magnificent old place, situated on a terrace overlooking the Firth, and dates back to 1093, although, of course, part of it has been modernised. It has now 150 bedrooms, besides magnificent reception rooms.

An Archbishop's House.

The Archbishop of York finds his episcopal residence very expensive to maintain. He has caused some stir by deciding to pull down part of Bishopsthorpe. There are, for instance, huge stables with accommodation for twenty-six horses. These are not now and never will again be used, for your modern prelate travels by car—or aeroplane. Yet the crumbling old buildings cost a mint of money to keep in repair.

Dr. Lang.

told me a good story of a drive with his cousin in his less famous days and how Mrs. Lang, after listening to the future Archbishop's fine outburst, said: "It is you who ought to have been on the stage."

TO-DAY'S GOSSIP

News and Views About Men, Women and Affairs in General

Long Voyage.

Princess Marie Louise leaves for South Africa this morning with her friend, Mrs. Saxton Noble. They will visit Princess Arthur of Connaught, whose small son is now nine, and will be returning to go to school next year, and go up into Rhodesia as well. The Princess does not expect to be back in London until the winter, but it is hoped that she will return in time for the Three Arts Ball, in which she has always taken a keen interest.

Dalmeny.

The Earl of Rosebery, who is at present at his house in Berkeley-square, is to be a good deal at Dalmeny during the early autumn. He is likely to go into residence there before the Queen's visit to the Lothians, where she arrives on the 23rd to spend a week with Lord and Lady Elphinstone at Carberry Tower.

International Politicians.

Two great authorities on international politics celebrate their birthdays to-day: M. Maurice Barres, who is sixty-one, and Sir George Tyrrell, who is fifty-seven. The former was celebrated as a novelist before he took to politics; but his novels always had a political tinge, their purpose being largely to keep the spirit of devotion to France alive in the author's native Lorraine.

Slum Picture.

Mr. Charles McEvoy, author of the new play at the St. Martin's, is what is called a realist. He puts a little corner of Stepney on the stage, and reproduces a London slum with great fidelity, except that his characters utter very few swear words, whereas the real Stepneyites utter very few that are not swear words. But to see Barbara Gott as the terror of the court "handing out the rough stuff" shows that the author knows his slums to the life.

Miss Baddeley.

less "slum waif; a lying, thieving, unmoral child, drawn with a pathological fidelity which comes near at times to the unpleasant. But Miss Baddeley's performance is extraordinarily and preciously good. She is not yet sixteen years of age.

Bishops of Truro.

The Bishopric of Truro, which is now vacant owing to the translation of Dr. Warman to the See of Chelmsford, was founded as recently as 1877, its first occupant being Dr. E. W. Benson, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury. During the forty-six years of its existence Truro has had no fewer than six bishops.

Famous Woman Athlete.

Miss Lines, who has won five events at the international women's athletic meeting at Antwerp, is a London girl, who was educated at Dulwich, and lives with her parents at Streatham Hill. About a year ago she defeated all competitors at an international contest in Paris, and afterwards distinguished herself at an athletic meeting at the Crystal Palace, which was attended by the Prince of Wales, who warmly congratulated her on her triumph.

More "Pirate" Buses.

Every week marks an addition to the small fleets of buses on the streets which are seeking to make inroads on the London General service. There are more to follow, I was told yesterday, and it is hinted that another attempt is to be made to form a combine of the competing companies outside the General. If this fails another company may be launched on far more pretentious lines.

Shocks.

The story of the lady whom a flash of lightning cured of paralysis by frightening her is startling, but not incredible. There is a perfectly well-authenticated case of a woman who imagined for twenty years that she could not walk, but suddenly discovered that she could run when an intoxicated soldier stooped to kiss her in her bathchair.

Still in London.

I saw the Marquis of Blandford driving his wife to the theatre in a two-seater the other night in a very business-like fashion, and after dropping her he proceeded to park the car near by and walk back. Mr. Savage Landor, who is writing another book, was walking along Chesterfield-street on the way to tea with some friends, and not far off I met Signor Alphonso Marconi, brother of the famous "wireless" Marconi.

Unrecognised.

Two women who at one time were so familiar to the man-in-the-street that they could not have passed unnoticed anywhere in England I have seen this week absolutely unrecognised. One was Lady de Bathe and the other Mrs. Lewisohn (Edna May), who was lunching with Lord Lathom on one side of the table and Alfred Noyes on the other.

Dissecting Woman.

Gina Lombroso, the author of "The Soul of Woman"—a book that has been widely read on the Continent and has just been published in a translation in America—is one of the leading Italian women of the day. She is the daughter of the famous criminologist, Cesare Lombroso, and is the wife of the historian, Guglielmo Ferrero. The book will certainly be published here before long.

New Margueritte Novel.

M. Victor Margueritte's new novel, "Le Compagnon" is being published immediately in Paris. This time the author of "The Bachelor Girl" deals with the "unprejudiced woman's real mission in her relations with man"; so you see that we are again to be confronted with the perennial old story.

First Bathing Machine.

Margate claims our gratitude as the place in which the first bathing machine was invented. Its inventor, one Benjamin Beagle, was a Quaker. It appears that the practice of sea-bathing had become fairly common by 1765.

Mrs. Buchanan Jardine, wife of Sir Robert Jardine, who takes up the role of Scotland's prominent hostesses.

In Place of the Policeman.

The London "bobby" is so much praised that for once I am sure he won't mind taking a back seat to the 'bus driver. The Australian I met in a West End hotel was at a loss for words to do the 'bus driver justice. "Wonderful how they keep clear of accidents," he said, "and the conductors are politeness itself." And he hailed from Sydney, where it is too hilly to have any "on top."

One Fault With London.

"Too big," he said laconically, asked for his opinion of London. He was still puffing and blowing—and he was a burly figure—after his scamper round. "Yes," he sighed again, "too big." That was all that was wrong with London. But he was obsessed with the idea, so much so that he could say nothing else, and had evidently seen nothing else, to speak figuratively, but the appalling bigness of London.

Wood Pigeon's Mistake.

Members of the Union Club, in Trafalgar-square, have always been proud of the fact that year after year a wood pigeon builds in a plane tree immediately outside their dining-room window. Mingled concern and anger were mine when yesterday morning I found four or five small boys trying to bring the twiggly platform to the ground.

PIP, SQUEAK AND WILFRED

A Happy Family of Pets Whose Comical Adventures Are Famous Throughout the World

A FEW "NEWS ITEMS."

Daily Mirror Office.

MY DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,—
I have such a lot of general news for you to-day that I think it best to split up my letter into the following interesting "news items":—

Christopher, now on holidays in the Isle of Wight, claims to have caught a gigantic octopus while fishing from a boat. Expect it is merely a jelly-fish!

Don't forget I am offering fine prizes for the best photographs of the pets while they are on tour. The Daily Mirror photographer—you may call him Cousin Bruce—who is travelling with Pip and Squeak, will help you all he can.

Angeline returns to her domestic duties to-orrow. She has greatly benefited by her holiday. I may keep Poppy, her young sister, as a "tweeny."

The pets are deeply sorry they were unable to visit the Restmore Children's Home and the St. Mary's Convalescent Home while at Broadstairs.

On behalf of Pip and Squeak I should like to thank all the children who have invited them to tea during their tour.

A letter, sent by a boy friend of Poppy, threatening to kidnap Wilfred and hold him up to ransom "for a thousand Children's Savings Certificates," quite fails to shake my nerve.

How many Certificates have you collected, by the by? Fifty? One hundred? Two hundred?

Your affectionate
Uncle Dick.

ARE YOU A "SNAPPER"?

Prizes for Pets' Photos.

I HAVE already received some forty odd entries for the "Snaps" Competition, and some of them look like prizewinners. As you know, I am offering some splendid money prizes

AT HASTINGS AND BEXHILL.

Pip, Squeak and Wilfred invite all boys, girls and grown-ups at HASTINGS to see them at the Bandstand, White Rock Gardens, at 11.30 this morning. This afternoon, at 2.30, they will appear on the Front at BEXHILL. To-morrow they are calling at Eastbourne and Seaford.

for the best photographs of Pip, Squeak and Wilfred taken during their tour of the seaside towns. Any boy or girl under sixteen may compete, and the prizes will be awarded for the clearest pictures of one or other of the pets—and I like "snaps" better than posed pictures.

If you are staying at one of the towns on the South or West Coast, which the pets will be visiting during the next few weeks, you will have a splendid opportunity of taking a picture of them which might mean a jolly little cheque for you!

The prizes are as follow:—
First Prize ..... £3 3 0
Second Prize ..... 2 2 0
Third Prize ..... 1 1 0
Four Prizes of 5s. each.
Ten Splendid Gifts, awarded according to merit.

Send your photograph or photographs, with your name, age and address, and the back to "Uncle Dick" ("Snaps"), The Daily Mirror, 29, Bouverie-street, London, E.C.4, to reach this office before September 8 next. Only children under sixteen may compete.

"HA! HA! THAT'S GOOD!"

Auntie (who has just given Tommy a sweet): Now what do you say, Tommy?
Tommy: Got any more?

"Can you tell an old bird from a young one, my man?" said the squire to the man who was seeking a job as gamekeeper.

"Yes, sir, by the teeth."
"By the teeth! But partridges have no teeth!"
"No, sir, but I have!" was the reply.

There had been a great number of speeches, and Mr. Jones, whose speech was to come last of all, saw that the audience was getting rather bored.

"Mr. Jones will now give us his address," said the chairman.

Mr. Jones rose, bowed, and said: "Ladies and gentlemen, my address is 35, Poppin-court, Ealing. Now let's start dinner!"

PIP "RETRIEVES" A PARASOL AND FINDS-ANGELINE!

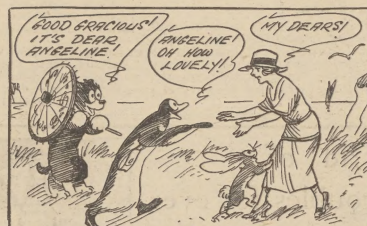

1. While on the cliffs yesterday a parasol flew past the pets. "Catch it, Pip!" cried Squeak.

2. Pip loves chasing things, and off he tore, highly delighted at this unexpected excitement.

3. He managed to catch the parasol just as it was flying over the cliffs

4. Imagine their joy when, turning round, the pets found the parasol belonged to Angeline!

5. Angeline was just as pleased to see them. "We'll have a special 'celebration' tea!" she cried.

6. They all had a lovely tea and spent hours telling each other their different adventures.

LADIES' BOUDOIR

GOLD FRINGED DRESSES AND LACE PANELLED HOSE.

The inside of this velvet coat is displayed to show how charmingly it is embroidered in fuchsia.

MUCH gold is being used this autumn. You will find tiny gold threads running through nearly all the new materials. Slim frocks of white satin or georgette embroidered in crystal and golden cylinder beads have a deep fringe of gold at the hem. And with them we will wear silk stockings with inset panels of gold lace.

EMBROIDERED TAFFETA.

If you are still yearning for a taffeta frock it must be embroidered lavishly in coloured wools or boldly in silks. Then with a long slim bodice and slightly fuller skirt, you will have a particularly nice little house frock.

TURN-COATS.

Fashion was in an economical mood when she devised the new evening cloaks, for they are reversible affairs. You wear black velvet next to the skin with white fur out on your off days, and then turn it and wear the fur inside on the happy occasions when you are sublimely sure of yourself. Super cloaks have ruffled collars of cock's feathers marvellously coloured and tipped with gold and silver.

A SMART FROCK.

The smartest restaurant frocks are draped low about the hips and are quite undorned save for a huge bow of the material placed at the back or on one hip—in piquant contrast to the sinuous lines of the gown. Edna Best wears such a frock in "The Lilies of the Field."

QUITE NEW.

The newest neckwear is a handkerchief jabot with a plain hem-stitched border, and this is attached to the neck of a dress by a slim bar brooch. Worn with a smart little black satin hat whose sole trimming consists of two "shaving brush" aigrettes stuck in opposite sides of the brim—you can go forth fearlessly, confident that your reputation for always "having the latest thing" remains the envy of your devoted friends.

PHILLIDA.

A lovely dinner gown of oyster satin or platinum tissue, with wrap over sash and simple skirt.
